A wonderful story about a boy named Max

This is the story of a wonderful little boy named Max. A boy with an amazing talent for climbing. A boy who is locked inside the cruel world that is Autism.

This is the story of his mother, Stephanie who wants to do anything she can for the smallest chance that she can improve her son's life to give him a chance. Her goal is that he may not just be physically present but that he can also communicate and contribute to the community.

This is the story of Sally. A partner and fellow Police Officer, whose vision has set into motion a chain of events to aim high and help Stephanie achieve her dream of getting Max the intensive therapy he needs.

This will be the story of us alongside you, attending a series of events and having a sensational time, simultaneously raising the money needed to give Max a chance at the life every child deserves.

For both the Police and Joe's Boxing, Stephanie is one of our own. She wears her challenge with a smile and love. Joe's Boxing Sydney in conjunction with the NSW Police will be hosting three events, which will raise awareness for Autism and also help raise funds for Max's therapy,

Tuesday 2nd April is World Autism Day and we are printing a special T-shirt which will be sold for $25 each. Please wear these at Tuesday's training on April 2nd with the proceeds shared for both Max's fundraising and Many Minds; a not-for-profit organization supporting those with Autism.

On June 22nd there will be a trivia entertainment night that will be hosted by radio personality Tony Moclair with a special appearance by Guido Hatzis the infamous radio prankster.

The trivia night will be followed by Joe's Boxing Fight Night, where our students will verse NSW Police. This will be held at Joe's Boxing Club in August 2013

If these two events go well we may have a big party to celebrate

Hello My name is Max I am 8 years old and what I like to do most of all is climb. I climb trees and on top of houses and when I come to Joe's Boxing I climb up ropes and into the hammock and jump and slide down the floor to ceiling ball. I wish I could talk well and make some good friends.

Rylstone Camp

From Friday 29 to Sunday 31st March we will be holding an end of summer camp at our wonderful retreat at Rylstone . This is dear to my heart and I do expect that everyone who wants to graduate to Black shirt to have done at least one camp.

There will be boxing training but we have archery, golf, bushwalking , climbing possibly abseiling incredible views, open fire & more stars than you have ever seen. It is only $50 with food included in cost. Share transport and come up for a day is ok.

Now the Anthony Mundine question is out of the way what's next for Daniel Geale

With Anthony Mundine out of the way, Daniel Geale can look to take on the US market with a fight against Matthew Macklin. The Irishman, who is based in New York, is firming up as Geale's next opponent. A fight with Macklin, ranked as the number 7 middleweight in the world by BoxRec (Geale is number 2), would be a formidable one. Macklin has a 29 win, 4 loss professional record but two of his most recent losses have come against the number 1 ranked middleweight, Sergio Martinez, and the number 5, Felix Sturm. Against Martinez last year, the Birmingham-born fighter gave a great performance and knocked down the Argentine in the seventh round. He couldn't go on with the early dominance and was eventually stopped in the 11th. Macklin lost to the best middleweight on the planet, and mixed it with him for the bout. Against Sturm in 2011, Macklin was extremely unlucky. Like Geale, Macklin fought Sturm in Germany. Like Geale, at the time Sturm was the hometown favourite and champion. And like Geale, it went to a split decision. But while many people believe Macklin did enough to get the win, and should have got the ruling, it went to Sturm. After the Geale-Mundine bout Macklin tweeted: "I beat Sturm, didn't get the decision, he did get decision. Let's get it on! Fight makes sense to everyone. The only reason it doesn't happen is if Geale doesn't fancy it." Macklin has an exciting style and is a respectable opponent. It would be a good entry fight to the US boxing market for Daniel Geale. While there are potentially bigger bouts out there for Geale – like Martinez and Gennady Golovkin, who fought in the amateurs – this is one that is most likely to get made quicker. Conquering the US takes time and Geale has to introduce himself to American fight fans. Beating Macklin would be a start and lead on to bigger things. Macklin appears as though he wants a clash with the Tasmanian. Recently he had this to say about Geale: "He's a very, very determined fighter who will not allow an opponent to gain momentum. He's got a real competitive edge. He never gives rounds away."

Phasing out 10 visits

From the end of March I will no longer advertise 10 visit memberships to the public and will ultimately cease these altogether. All existing 10 visits will be honoured and if you wish to top up in March I will accept. It may be that from time to time I offer a 10 visit membership where a student who has been here for a time has commitments but for new students it is not the best.

INSTRUCTORS WANTED

I am looking for at least two more students to become instructors experience not necessary just the ability to commit to the same time each week and I will provide training and guidance. Your rewards are mainly in heaven but I will do some private lessons with you for free. The classes I have in mind are mainly weekdays 5pm, 6pm or 7pm but it would also be nice to have go to backup for weekend classes as well. Please don't be shy talk to me anytime

KNIFE DEFENCE SEMINAR

A good friend of mine who is a top professional martial arts teacher in Geelong has offered to teach a seminar of knife attack and defence in an art called AMOK which is a blend of well known knife fighting arts originating from the Philippines and is taught to special forces around the world. Knives are simply the most dangerous weapon seminar date 9th June.

Who would be a politician?

I am sure we have all thought about being famous at some point or even someone in the public eye maybe the Prime Minister or even Mayor or even someone of responsibility. We are also generally unsympathetic when they become embroiled in some trouble or accused of wrong doing whether it is true or not. But what if it was you someone was out to get. I just read a book written by Kay Danes who along with her husband were wrongly incarcerated in a Laos prison for trying to smuggle 160kg of Sapphires in her underwear as silly as that sounds. They were held for two years in atrocious conditions and although totally supported by the Australian government and exonerated they were financially ruined and the media headlines had made sure they were considered dodgy from thereon. I have been on the Strata committee of my building for the last 15 years and the other owners were grateful for the thankless work I did and pretty much left me in charge. Last year a person who has held a grudge against me for a long time came on to the committee and firstly accused me of misappropriating funds from the building and after an audit failed to find wrongdoing then called an EGM further questioning my conduct with the only thing being brought to light that in the 15 years I had been here is we had some water leaks into the unit below which had long been resolved. But it hasn't stopped that person from making slanderous accusations and spreading rumours aimed at damaging me. No matter how many times they are proven wrong they invent something else and I wonder when will it ever end so I now have empathy for those in the spotlight.
